

Genesis 1: House of the Covenant

Both a teaching text and a coloring book, Genesis 1: House of the Covenant is a new resource prepared to help you introduce middle school and younger children to Genesis 1 with clarity and faith -- and with a clear eye on the findings of the natural sciences. A middle school child can read it alone; for younger ones, the mother can read and talk her child through this opening to the Bible, while they color the pages. The pictures, by Catherine Billion and her family, are very attractive and inviting to color. Some examples of Ana Braga-Henebry's coloring will be posted, for your inspiration. Actually the adults too have greatly enjoyed this beautiful book. The thought is based on the writings of Father Stanley Jaki as well as extensive reading in about the natural sciences in relation to the theological concept of creation.

$5.00 black and white, 30 pages, 13 images.
8.5 x 11 on heavy linen type paper, suitable for color pencils or markers as well as crayons.
